

Weekly Do Now:

Monday: What career are you interested in and why?

I am interested in studying psychology. I want to be able to study the brain and human feelings so I can help people that struggle with things like mental disorders. I am mainly interested in becoming a child therapist.

Tuesday: How should you behave when you have a sub?

You should behave just as well as you would for the teacher, if not better. It is expected that we treat the substitute with respect.

Wednesday: Why do you think it is important to have a basic understanding of how banks/credit unions work?

It is important to have an understanding because it will benefit us in the future when we decide what credit union/bank we want to partner with. It can help us decide which institution will be the best fit and help us as an adult because we have previous knowledge.

Thursday: What is your experience with YouScience up to this point?

So far, I like YouScience. Some of the standards were more difficult than others, but overall, I like it and am excited to see my results.

Friday: What is a FICO?

A FICO is a score that determines if you can pay your loans and payments on time. FICO stands for the Fair Isaac Corporation.
